THE BRITISH ROYAL FAMILY AT BUCKINGHAM

Seldom if ever before has the camera been permitted to reproduce the private life of the King, but war has brought strange changes. Here is an exclusive photograph of George V. and his family at luncheon. At the King's left is his mother, the Dowager Queen Alexandra. Next to her is Queen Mary, then Col. Geo. Harry Davidson, D. S. O., a guest; then the Hon. Charlotte Knollys, a member of the Queen's Household; then Gen. Sir Dighton Probyn, extra-equerry to the King; then, with her hat and upper part of face just showing, the Princess Mary, and last the Princess Victoria. Some famous paintings are to be seen on the walls of the room. Copyright Underwood & Underwood.

The heroic deeds of the men of the U. S. Destroyer Fanning in destroying a German submarine and capturing the crew have been told by the Navy Department. This picture shows the men on the deck of the U-boat in the act of surrendering, while their vessel was sinking under them. All jumped into the sea and two brave American seamen went overboard to save a Hun pirate who couldn't reach the destroyer's side. Copyright by Committee on Public Information.
